

Dear friends,

Below, a link to a very moving Photo-essay, done by a good friend of ours, James Rodriguez, about Diodora Hernandez.

Diodora is the Mayan Mam woman who was shot in her right eye, July 2010, and miraculously survived – she was shot basically because she did not, and does not want to sell her plot of land to Goldcorp Inc.

Since her shooting, Rights Action has provided Diodora and her family regular amounts of health support funding.

Thank-you. For more information, questions, ...

Grahame

Friends and Colleagues, I hope this message finds you well. On this occasion I share a photo essay documenting the resistance that continues in San Miguel Ixtahuacán against Goldcorp’s Marlin Mine. To view and read the photo essay (note the new location):

I have recently come out of a short hiatus in which I completely overhauled MiMundo.org. Please browse the site over when possible, especially the menu tabs: <http://www.mimundo.org/>

A principal addition includes the capacity to license images at real time via the Photo Galleries menu tab. Actual prints can also be ordered and delivered through this system. Please note I am continually adding images and photo galleries, and all images have IPTC caption and location info.

If you are a social justice NGO/NPO or alternative media outlet, please contact me to work out editorial imaging within your budget. This photo essay was made possible with the logistical support of Rights Action.

As always, feel free to distribute this message freely.

Thank you,
-James Rodríguez
